

“Even fools are thought wise if they keep silent, and discerning if they hold their tongues.”

God had given us the mouth and the tongue to speak and to express ourselves to the people who are around and especially to those that we are called to have certain relation with them whether in regard to family life and living or in regard to neighborhood, or in regard to work or in regard to our service and ministry unto God.

Communication is very important to give clear message to each and to everyone of the people around us.

But in addition to the tongue we can communicate in other ways like face and body gestures, signals, hand movements, using colours and flags, etc.

One more important way for communication is to be silent. There are times we have to speak but there are times we have to keep silent.

God would teach us which time we have to speak, what to speak and which time we have to be silent.

To be silent is an optimum wisdom and it requires much self control. Even fools are thought wise if they keep silent: Fools usually vent their anger and receive more harms. “Fools give full vent to their rage, but the wise bring calm in the end.” (Proverbs 29: 11) But fools will be considered wise if they would hold their tongues; because to be silent in certain circumstances has great value and importance.

Not every time we should speak; to be silent can convey better and communicate the message in more clear way.
